ANTUNG-MUKDEN R. R. TANGLE

LINE WOULD MAKE TOKIO WEEK NEARER ST. PETERSBURG.

nerovised During Russian War, It Is of No Commercial Use Until Improved Japan Asserts Right to Develop It From Treaty of 1905 With China.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. SMANGHAI, Aug. 9 .- At the desire of the Government all the Chinese papers are silent concerning the action of the Japanese in beginning the reconstruction of the Antung-Mukden Railway despite the wishes of China.

The Regent has ordered that the negotiations be reopened in order to secure a modification of the Japanese action.

The Mukden-Antung railroad, the subject of present dispute between Japan and China, is potentially one of the dominant factors in the future of Manchuris and the relations between the two countries in that field. Commercially the ilroad is invaluable as a connecting link betwen Japan and the trans-Siberia erstem. Its value from a military standint was demonstrated only partially during the war between Japan and Russia.

As an avenue of trade this 180 miles of narrow gauge track over the mountains of the Liaotung peninsula stands to-day practically worthless. Should the Japanese ride rough shod over protests from Pekin and standardize the track, lower grades and put the road on a working basis they would find themselves in direct communication with the whole Interior of Manchuria and Russia itself. for the completion of this link for practical railroad use would bring Tokio within three days ride of Mukden and pearer St. Petersburg by almost a week.

As the railroad map of Manchuria stands trans-Siberian system has its terminus at the commercial port of Dalny, with the extending spur into Port Arthur practically closed to trade. Ship passage from Dainy to Shimonoseki and Nagasaki has to complete the gap in Japanese trade save by the very meagre steamer con-

Before the war with Russia there was Seoul to Wiju on the Yalu at the northstandardized and put into commercial use, completing the line of steel from the Yalu border.

It was from Antung, directly across the Yalu from the terminus of the Corear railroad, that the military engineers laid their line to Mukden during the war. It is this final link in the direct line of communication with the trans-Siberian trunk at Mukden that has become the subject of the diplomatic wrangle. The Japanese assert that by agreement with Pekin signed in 1905 they have the right to convert this rickety military road into the final practical link between Tokio and Mukden. The Cainese Government insists that whatever changes the Japanese shall make in the line shall be confined to the present gauge track and that no broadening of the line was contemplated

With characteristic energy the Japanese crossed the Yalu immediately after the close of the war and built a new city of Antung below the ancient Chinese city of that name. From this new city as a base they have since reached out for all the Yalu River commerce and especially the great Yalu timber trade, which hitherto has been in the hands of the Chinese. the Japanese newcomers in monopolizing the timber rights.

Antung is the distributing centre for all the interior Liaotung country, although the shallowness of the river at this point oes not make the port an important one in foreign trade. The conversion of the present military road connecting at Antung with the main Corean line by a new steel bridge would overcome the disadvantages suffered by Antung as a port and enable the Japanese to throw into teep grades. The course of the road lies ver very mountainous country. To tunel and standardize it would mean the utlay of a great deal of money. Yet it as this railroad that permitted Japan get troops to the front in ever increasnumbers during the last months of the war. Should it be put into shape for farrying heavy traffic Japan could throw street. in army from the central barracks of the huria in something like seventy hours.

CUBA WORRIES WASHINGTON

SHIPWRECK FEARED FOR THE GOMEZ ADMINISTRATION.

Officials Shrink From a New Intervention. but Conditions at Havana Are Bad State Department Protests and Publicity Anger Cubans-Graft Plot.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.-Reliable information received here indicates that serious political conditions prevail in Cuba and that henceforth President Gomez is going to have a pretty hard time steering his ship of state. Recently the entire Cuban Cabinet resigned. A new cabinet has been organized, but according to the latest information there will be still more changes.

It is impossible not to detect among officials here a note of pessimism concerning the situation in Cuba and there are very few who believe that the new Republic will succeed. No one exactly thinks that President Gomez's administration is going on the rocks very soon, but there is a distinct feeling that sooner or later there will be a crisis, probably leading to another internal convulsion and possibly another intervention on the part of the United States. The Government here does not want to intervene and such action will be put off for as long a time as possible, but that the time is coming. ooner or later, few doubt.

The Cuban Legation here and the Government in Havana are indignant over the recent publication of certain facts concerning the administration of affairs in A conspiracy of the press of the Cuba. United States is alleged and the Cubana o'clock yesterday morning. The two men are convinced that some one with ulterior motives is working for the downfall of the new republic. However, neither the State Department nor any one else in Washington has been able to discover evidences of a campaign against Cuba. The Cubans have resented the publication of the facts that the State Department has protested against the illegal discharge of Mr. Page, the American engineer appointed by Gov. Magoon to supervise the building of the Cienfuegos aqueduct, against the placing of machinery for sugar mills on the free list, against the purchase of arms in Europe, against the proposed trade of property between the Government and the United Railways of Havana, against non-fulfilment of the McGivney-Rokeby contract in Havana and the nonpayment of W. J. Olliver for his Pinar del Rio road. The Cubans also resent the publication of the Department's attitude concerning the sending of Gen. Loinaz del Castillo to South America That the State Department took the of common knowledge here, yet that the O'Conner's version of the story is that he and his friend went into the restaurant and were served with beer. The other waiters assaulted him when he attempted to make the arrest, he said, and that is the entry on the police blotter.

When the management of the restaurant heard of the waiters' predicament they got Judge Zeller of Special Sessions to fix bail for them. This he did, making the amount $300 for each man. Mr. Miller, who was in chargeof the restaurant last night, said that charges would be preferred against O'Conner to Police Commissioner Baker.

O'Conner's version of the assault facts have been published is considered outrageous by the Cubans.

News has reached Washington recently of an effort to sell to the Government certain lands adjoining Camp Columbia, a few miles outside of Havana, where the Cuban regular army is established. Involved in this attempted sale, which almost went through, was a colossal piece of graft. The land is needed for the establishment of a target range and for the general enlargemet of Camp Columbia.

> WANT A CROWD IN YOUR CELLAR? P. S. Commission Invites Offers of Private Property for Subway Entrances.

It is the hope of the Public Service Commission that arrangements may be made for providing entrances to the proposed Broadway - Lexington avenue subway through private property, just as has been done in the case of the McAdoo tunnels The commission intends to invite owners of property near where the new stations are to be placed to make offers to the commission stating the terms on which they will either sell or lease their property. Commenting yesterday on this matter Commissioner Maltbie said:

"In many instances the maintenance of kiosks in the street is less convenient to abutting property owners than would of klosks in the street is less convenient to abutting property owners than would be entrances and exits leading through their private property. For this reason the commission desires to adopt the latter course wherever satisfactory arrangements can be made. As the station plans have not yet been acted upon by the commission, this is the best time for property owners to make offers to the commission. The construction of the present subway led to a great increase in values of property along its line, but this increase was more marked at points contiguous to the stations than at other places; and since the construction of the Broadway-Lexington line will doubtless lead to the same increase in values and to the improvement of the abutting property it is possible for those owning property near the stations by making arrangements at the present time for connection with these stations to lay out a comprehensive plan for the improvement of their property.

"In some stations it may be possible to property.

"In some stations it may be possible to allow of show windows in the abutting buildings opening on the mezzanine floor of the stations, and the immense benefit to be derived by the owners of that property through such a privilege and by reason of having the great number of people who will use the subway passing to and from the station through the property should be apparent. The commission has recognized the advisability of taking up this matter now and has designated as assistant counsel to discuss the matter with abutting property owners."

HANGS HIMSELF IN HIS CELL. James Ahearn, Who Apparently Murdered His Wife, Uses a Chain in His Cell.

James Ahearn, a boss truckman of 110 Washington avenue, Laurel Hill, Queens, who was arrested on Friday morning after the body of his wife, who had been hacked to death with a meat cleaver, was found in their bedroom, hanged himself yesterday after floon hour in his cell in the Queens county court house at Hunter's

In the section of the jail in which he was the cots in the cells are turned back against the wall on hinges and then secured by a chain. Ahearn pulled the chain from his cot and leaving it fast to the wall made a noose out of the free end. With this about his neck he threw his weight upon it and strangled to death.

Keeper Harry Evan making a tour of the jail came upon the body at 1:33 o'clock. Ahearn and his wife were heard quarrelling in their bedroom all through Thursday night by their daughter Katherine. In the morning Ahearn was found lying across the foot of the bed, on which his wife's body lay under the bedcloth-The body had been hacked as if th an axe. On Friday evening after the well on the place had been pumped dry a meat cleaver [which could have caused the wounds was recovered. The cold water had kept blood on it congealed those of the dead woman.

Ahearn retained Young, McNally & Hart to defend him. The defence was to assert that the murder was done by some one who forced a way into the room and killed the woman while she lay asleep and while her husband lay across the foot of the bed. There were signs that some one had forced an entrance into the house and into the room where the murder was done. It is said that this was done some previously, however, when a key Ahearn also said that Thursday he left his home in Laurel Hill about 8:30 o'clock his home in Laurel Hill about 8:30 o'clock and went to Hunter's Point, where he remained until about 11 o'clock, when he went back to Laurel Hill. He was seen aboard the trolley car by Peter Carroll of Laurel Hill and Frederick Turnier, chauffeur for Dr. F. J. McKenna of Long Island City. When he got home, he said, he found his family al! in bed, so he got a pint of beer; and after drinking it went in and lay down on the foot of the bed.

SALESMAN A SUICIDE.

Thomas K. Moffett Leaves a Letter Resigning His Job on Account of Ili Health. Thomas K. Moffett, a salesman for the R. B. Maclea Company of 81 Worth street. committed suicide on Saturday night in his room in the Long Acre Hotel, at 157 West Forty-seventh street, by shooting himself through the right temple.

Moffett had been living at the hotel for three months and had been in ill health. On Saturday afternoon he asked for his mail and then went to his room. The door was locked yesterday and the hotel people forced it. Moffett was in bed, half dressed. The revolver was on the bed beside him. A letter addressed to R. B. Maclea was left by the suicide. It stated briefly that he had been in ill health and did not care to undertake another road trip and therefore tendered his resignation. There were also letters from a person who signed the name of Carter in Nashville, Tenn. It was apparent from these letters that Moffett had written of his ill health There was no money in the room, but a bank book showed a balance of $100. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Stephen Merritt at 171 Eighth avenue. Mr. Moffett is supposed to have come from Nashville.

Robert K. Macles of the dry goods firm that employed Moffett said last night: "I knew that Mr. Moffett had been sinder the weather for some time, but I had no idea he was as sick as he must have been. I had been urging him to go on the road to see some of his customers on the road to see some of his customers, but he had put it off from time to time, as he said he felt poorly and the heat affected him. He was recommended to my firm by Frederick K. Rupprecht, vice-president of the benking house of Converse & Co. He had been for many years with the cotton goods firm of Heller & Long at 78 Worth street and was known all over the country in the trade. He had been out of business for two years when he came to us seven months ago. He was a high salaried man, and we considered him one of the best selesmen in the country."

DIVISION OF THE UNION Into Four Parts, Through New England Tariffs. Predicted by Watson.

Institute, at the First Presbyterian Church the Memorial Day speech of Secretary of War Dickinson, Tom Watson, former candidate for President on the Populist ticket, suggests the reconstruction of the Union into four grand divisions, declaring the hemisphere will be all the happier for it.

His reply was called forth by the state-ment of Mr. Dickinson at Gettysburg that there are in the South but few, if any, who would not turn swiftly with sentiments of abhorrence from any suggestion that it would be better for the South negatives. Among these are no dogma, if it had succeeded in establishing an

After denouncing this assertion and charging that Mr. Dickinson did not believe what he said, and the Northern people knew he did not speak the truth. Mr. Watson said:

"I am quite sincere in saying it would have been better for the South had the Confederacy succeeded. We would have had no constant irritant such as we now have in the social equality clerks in affinholding coons and the niggerite was. people of the North, who are eternally putting the devil into heads of Afro-Americans.

"The Western States would be better off in a separate State of their own. It will come some day.
